LAUGHTER

The new assistant in the optical-goods store was being instructed by the proprietor: "Now, son, we want to get a fair and honest price out of every customer. After you have fitted the glasses and the customer asks, 'What's the charge? you say: 'The charge is $10.' Then, you say: "If the customer doesn't flinch, you say, 'That's for the frames; the lenses will be another $10.'"

"Then you pause, and again you say: 'And if the customer doesn't flinch, you say, 'Each.'"

-Ralph Bunch, Woman's College Potpourri

【GAME】
Can you change one letter in each line, so as to form a new word on the last line. Remember, you may change only one letter in each line, and it must form a new word on the last line.

A. SACK  B. RICH
C. RICE  D. CREE
E. RICE  F. RICE

The answers will be given in the next issue.

JIMMY'S DAILY TALK

The Family Record Concert
(The gramophone has just finished playing Beethoven's famous
"Moonlight Sonata."

Jimmy: (Comparing the silence.) Oh, what a wonderful piece!

Mary: (As they turn it on again.)

Mother: (Dreamily.) It's getting late now. We've got to get up early tomorrow morning to see your Daddy off at the airport.

Jimmy: (Drowsily.) How about you and Mom turning in first and I'll stay here for a few minutes more Father: (Earnestly.) Never mind, your Mom already has all my things arranged.

Mary: (Tiredly.) Well, I just lay down in bed, but I'm not quite used to his bicycle again.

Jimmy: (Sighing.) The last note has been played. Well, if you insist on staying, children, I'll go and make beds for you. (Leaving the parlour with Daddy.)

Mary: (Seriously.) Jimmy, why didn't you borrow some violin solos, they are my favorites; especially those played by Hoffits, the greatest violinist of the time.

Jimmy: (Sadness.) I did want to borrow some more, but, you see, it's not proper to take too many for one time.

Mary: (Determined.) Any time you go there again, will you let me know? I want to listen to the rest of the collection.

Jimmy: (Cheerfully.) Well, I'm sure you'll be surprised. Jimmy, you know, the more I appreciate the technique of the great musicians the more I am disappointed in my poor fingers. I never can become a musician.

Mother: (Jesus.) Don't be so harsh, remember what Daddy said: Nothing is impossible if you have the courage to try. Yeah, I'll remember that. Well, I hope Daddy will be successful with this forthcoming trip to Japan, so we'll be able to increase our own record collection.

Jimmy: (Hesitantly.) I hope so. Let's finish by playing Chopin's Polonaise and then close our concert.

【GRAND RECORD】
gramophone  "Moonlight sonata"
- to see your Daddy off at the airport
- to learn about the collection
- beautiful
- violin sonata
- collection of the season
- record
- to play Chopin's Polonaise