LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

by Oscar Wilde
Composed by Barbara L. Winters

Meanwhile Mrs. Elranye asks for Lady Windermere and learns she has gone out. Mrs. Elranye memo-finds Lady Windermere's letter and, to prevent this tragedy, follows Lady Windermere to Lord Darling-ton's rooms. It is revealed to the reader that Mrs. Elranye is Lady Windermere's mother who was believed to have died shortly after her daughter's birth. Actually Mrs.
Elranye desired her husband and dughter and ran away with another man. This is the situation she would have her daughter avoid.

As Ernest and Elranye leave, Mrs. Elranye is taken in by Lord Darlington and through the course of the play, Lady Windermere is thwarted from meeting with Mrs. Elranye.

In Memory of Heine

The services were in both Germany and the United States on Friday, February 17, to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the death of Heinrich Heine. They were marked by a singularly happy feast.

The city of his birth, Duscedel, had arranged the purchase of the largest known collection of Heine manuscripts, which had been more or less "in hiding" in the United States since 1929. They will now be returned to Germany as a part of the national treasure.

These manuscripts were smuggled out of Germany and put in storage, keeping here because Heine, even dead, was a powerful weapon against anti-Semitism. It was feared that Hitler, in his insanity, might try to obliterate any of the handwriting of Germany's greatest lyric poet.

In the presence of the manuscripts, the German people gave expression of the triumph of the spirit of Heine over the madness of Hitler. It is told to show that this fashion, even a detail of the great lyrical such musi-must long outlive the world bulk
