IS THE PLACE OF A GIRL AT HOME?

Amy Chu (St. Paul's Co-Ed)

In the place of a girl at home? No doubt all men would answer in the affirmative. To them girls are but "housewifery" which become nurse and mother and mother-in-law as time goes by. Why is the function of a wife? Someone to help the husband build a family, someone to care for the husband and sonately to help him and be the mother of the house. The word "housewifery" already indicates that the place of a wife is at home.

Yet, however, make people have this idea. Girls are expected to be well-mannered and that they should take care of the family by nursing them and feeding them and washing the clothes. The answer is quite simple. It is just the service of God. All creatures are created, with a few exceptions, that females are the ones to bear the next generation, to raise the infants and let them satisfy themselves with nourishment. But it was too late. No sooner had she lain down than she closed her eyes and stopped breathing. She didn't even have enough time to link her knees with her dry tongue.

Silence. Silence. Not a sound could be heard, though we were all standing around her. We were unable to anything; all we could do was to allow our tears roll down our cheeks silently and pay for her and for her babies that would go afoul in history.

(See page 84)

RIDDLES

A Proud Boy (T. K. P.)

1. What is that which no one wishes to have, yet no one wishes to lose?
2. What is it which will be yesterday in 100 years?
3. On what day of the week does all last?
4. What is that which you can throw away, yet someone else gains?
5. What makes more noise than a pig in a sty?

Answers:
1. A shadow
2. The future
3. Sunday
4. A letter
5. A pistol